You Never Cared

"I know you hate me, but it's not my fault. I didn't mean for any of this to happen. But...you never cared."

_The white haired boy stumbled around, drowsiness eventually capturing him. His legs gave way, and he fell over. He stumbled down a hill, and crashed before an ebony colored dragon, and his rider. He moaned, but didn't bother to open his eyes. He stayed still, and unaware, the other person with him, lifted him onto the dragon and tok off into the air. _

"I bet you celebrated, when you found out I left. That you made Snotlout the new heir. But...you never cared."

_The dragon rider smiled sadly as he and his dragon prepared to take off, when a boy fell before them. He was unconscious, and not wanting to leave him, the rider placed him on his dragon friend. He took a closer look at him as they took off. He had pure white hair and unblemished skin. His eyes were closed, so he didn't see the color they were. He was just glad, that maybe, just maybe, he had someone to talk to besides his dragon. _

"My journey has only begun, and I haven't seen much, I know you're gone. And it's been years, but...I can't believe, it's never sunk in until now, but...you never cared."

_The brunette gasped, when a trail of lights appeared. She urged her horse to follow them. She knew she had to see the world. And if following them meant doing so, she had no other choice but to follow. Her journey was only beginning. And she was determined to see it through. _

"I want to change things, I want to be more. I want to prove myself to you...but, you never cared."

The red head made it to a crossroad. She looked left, and then right. She kept this up for a few moments, until she finally decided to take the left path, following the path of lights that had suddenly appeared before her. She knew this meant something was going to happen. Something big.

"This journey, it's going to bring chance, and the day it happens, we won't turn back. Because, after all...
